

Renata Pepl is a Research Programme Manager at Queen Mary University of London. For over eight years, she has been involved in developing international collaborations with grassroots organisations, focusing on the use of Arts & Community engagement methodologies as a resource for researching Gender-Based Violence, Mental Health, Urban Violence, and homelessness in the UK, Latin America, and South Asia.

She is the International Partnership/Projects Manager at WOW - Women of the World Festival in Rio de Janeiro. Currently she serves as Vice-Chair at the Latin American Women's Rights Service and is Co-Director at MinA - Migrants in Action, a community-based arts organisation that collaborates with migrant women from the Global Majority with experience of gender-based violence in London.
